

Garden Planning Scenarios

Scenario # 1: You have a 4' x 10' plot at a Community Garden. You want to grow vegetables that would be work well together in a stir fry. Think about how your stir fry may change throughout the year. What would plant your garden in early spring? Would you replace any of those crops later in the season?

Scenario # 2: You have a 4' x 10' plot at a Community Garden. You want to grow vegetables that would be work well together in a stew or soup. Think about the different kinds of soups you would want to make throughout the year. What would plant your garden in early spring? Would you replace any of those crops later in the season?

Scenario # 3: You have a 4' x 10' plot at a Community Garden. You want to grow vegetables that can be used as pizza toppings. Think about all the different things you can put on top of a pizza. What would plant your garden in early spring? Would you replace any of those crops later in the season?

Scenario # 4: You have a 4' x 10' plot at a Community Garden. You want to grow vegetables that can be eaten in a salad. Think about all the different kinds of salad you can make. What would plant your garden in early spring? Would you replace any of those crops later in the season?

Scenario # 5: You have a 4' x 10' plot at a Community Garden. You've been gardening for years and want to try some new vegetables this year. What vegetables haven't you grown before and have always wanted to try? What would plant your garden in early spring? Would you replace any of those crops later in the season?

Scenario # 6: You have a 4' x 10' plot at a Community Garden. You want to grow vegetables that can be used in a burrito. What would plant your garden in early spring? Would you replace any of those crops later in the season?